MEDIA RELEASE

Te Aroha Branch Manager retires after 30 years of service

First Credit Union (FCU) General Manager, Simon Scott wishes to announce that after 30 years of service to the New Zealand Credit Union movement, Te Aroha Branch Manager, Christine Williams is retiring.

“Christine has without doubt been the essence of our Te Aroha Branch and has been an invaluable part of the FCU team. After 30 years, it is now time for Christine to put herself first- she’s earned her retirement.”

Christine is a strong advocate for FCU and her local community. “After 30 years working for the Credit Union, I have decided it is time for me to move on. The Credit Union and its members have been an important part of my life. I have enjoyed the challenges, the staff in branch and in the wider organisation who have been so supportive.”

First Credit Union is proud to support the smaller communities like Te Aroha, and it’s fair to say that Christine is leaving the branch in excellent heart.

Christine’s last day with First Credit Union is Friday 10th June. On behalf of the Board, Management and Staff of First Credit Union we wish Christine and husband Mark all the best for their future.

FCU’s Te Aroha branch is supported by its branch network across the Waikato and Bay of Plenty regions and has been proudly offering products and services to everyday kiwis to help them achieve their financial goals, within their means for over 65 years.
